Health Care Practitioners are so overwhelmed in today's market running a business, seeing and educating patients, and managing staff just to name a few. Rather than trying to create an unproven program of your own, let us teach you the Functional Nutrition Assessment that has been perfected over the last 9 years in over 80 offices across the country.

The Functional Nutrition Assessment is a comprehensive program that teaches the business and clinical aspects of implementing nutrition in your practice. Once you and/or your assigned staff member has completed the 16 hour training course you will be able to....

- Functionally assess patients
- Utilize proper patient interview skills
- Understand supportive secondary assessment tools
- Understand specific nutrients that support the primary systems of the body
- Empower patients to eat the "right" foods
- Develop effective patient supplement protocols
- Understand the importance of fixing digestion first
- Utilize patient management skills
- Understand and utilize scripts to communicate nutrition effectively with patients
- Conduct effective patient education classes that derive commitment

Our guaranteed small class size will get you the individualized attention necessary to make this program effective for everyone.

Once completed, Society of Wellness members will receive monthly training webinars, live protocol development support, and monthly promotional collateral. All the tools you need to market and grow your practice!

Jennifer Franco CN, ACN, is a national speaker, health expert, educator and owner of Society of Wellness (SOW), a nutrition consulting company which implements nutritional systems in doctors' offices around the country. The style of nutrition taught in these offices is one that begins with a whole food philosophy that is synergistic with health care practitioners. Together, true health is created.
