Clinical Strategies for the Contemporary Patient

With Bruce Bond, DC and Amanda Williams, ND, Dip Bot Med

We live in a world in which quality of life and longevity is compromised by an epidemic of chronic disease. If current health trends continue, the alarming forecast is for future generations to live shorter, sicker lives. As health care professionals we have the unique opportunity to educate clients on the importance of a whole lifestyle approach to health together with functional nutritionals and botanicals to support the body's natural healthy state.*

For the first time, Dr Bruce Bond, an American chiropractor and Amanda Williams, an Australian naturopath, will bring their extensive clinical experience to offer a one-of-a kind event. With over 50 years of clinical practice between them, Bruce and Amanda will deliver a practical, protocol-rich seminar with strategies you can implement in your own clinic the next day. This seminar will break down barriers to simplify learning about botanicals and how to integrate them with whole food nutrition. Get practical and time-tested communication strategies that will help you talk to your patients' hearts versus their heads, achieving greater long-term compliance.

We invite you to come learn, laugh, and ultimately feel empowered by knowledge you can easily apply. Both of these experts are known for their dynamic, energetic presentations, and their joint appearance is sure to make this a seminar you won't want to miss.

Bruce Bond,
DC

Dr. Bond practiced for 22 years in Cleveland where he started and ran a successful functional wellness and chiropractic clinic. He currently works in his son's clinic in Melbourne, Florida. The Florida clinic was started in a town in which he and his son were not known, yet three years later it is a successful, profitable private-pay clinic utilizing effective herbal and nutritional therapies.

Dr. Bond is on a mission because he sees people are losing years of their life living in bodies shattered by time. His clinical experience has shown him that by utilizing effective, gentle botanicals, the human body can restore form and function. Dr. Bond has been bringing his clinical practical experience, humor and empowering style to clinicians for over sixteen years. His ability to make the complicated simple will enable you to go back to your office and help those who want to restore and revitalize themselves both physically and emotionally.

Amanda Williams,
ND, Dip Bot Med

An internationally experienced integrative naturopath and medical herbalist, Amanda has over 20 years of clinical practice. Amanda's passion for the art and science of herbal therapy, holistic clinical nutrition, lifestyle programs and empowerment coaching synergize into dynamic programs individually tailored for each patient. Specializing in integrative endocrinology for women, Amanda has dedicated her clinical practice to discovering and addressing the underlying cause of ill health to deliver sustainable long-term health solutions. Amanda's naturopathic practice is located in Brisbane, Australia where she utilizes a variety of functional health tests and has a large herbal and nutritional dispensary. Amanda has been under the tutelage of Professor Kerry Bone, a renowned herbal clinician, for two decades.

A popular speaker, Amanda is able to convey the technical complexity of herbal and clinical therapy for ease of implementation at your own practice. She has presented seminars to health care professionals in the United States, Canada, the U.K., South Africa and Australia since 2001.
