

The Bittersweet Paradox

New Herbal Solutions for Optimizing Cardiometabolic Health and Healthy Blood Sugar Metabolism

Presented by Professor Kerry Bone & Lee Carroll

Our modern lifestyle of poor nutrition and sedentary behavior combined with stress, immune challenges and environmental toxins has created a perfect storm for the epidemic of metabolic health challenges we now face.

The biomedical research in this area is vast and continually expanding. This new information gives the natural clinician a unique advantage in solving this complex health puzzle, through our capacity to directly translate state of the art research findings into today's clinical practice.

Keeping up to date with the latest research is critical for the best care of your patients, however it can be confusing and daunting. In this seminar Kerry and Lee have done the hard work for you. They will provide comprehensive cutting-edge information, distilled from their extensive clinical experience and reading many hundreds of recent scientific studies.

Cardiometabolic health is one of the fastest-growing areas of clinical practice. This seminar is a must for all clinicians wanting to provide the best care for their patients.

To ensure you gain a thorough working understanding of the information, the seminar program has been designed to maximize your learning experience. The key features are:

- New and existing herbal protocols will be extensively reviewed across each of the key health challenges*
- These protocols will then be workshopped through strategy and case history sessions
- Protocol and strategy summaries, together with tools to help you integrate this information in a practical way, will also be provided and outlined in separate sessions.
